

BRAINERD DAILY DISPATCH.

VOLUME 5, NO. 275.

BRAINERD, MINN., WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25, 1906.

PRICE TWO CENTS

IS BECOMING NORMAL.

SITUATION AT SAN FRANCISCO IS RAPIDLY GROWING VERY MUCH BETTER.

BUSINESS BEING RESUMED

THE DEATH LIST IS NOW ESTIMATED AS BEING LESS THAN THREE HUNDRED.

San Francisco, April 25.—The seventh day since the earthquake jarred the city and started the fires that laid it in ashes, as on the preceding days, took up the accumulated impetus of the sixth day and added such volume of its own that the next day will dawn on a situation much nearer the normal. Such stores as remain unburned are opening for ordinary business, temporary structures are being run up for the accommodation of others, clearing of the ruins is well under way, the inspection of the bank vaults is completed, preparation for service on the street railways is so far advanced that the company expressed its readiness to resume as soon as the mayor will permit, and the water company is ready to supply a total of 12,000,000 gallons daily.

The citizens of San Francisco have done so splendidly that some little consternation was created during the morning when President Roosevelt's proclamation was read, turning over to Dr. Edward Devine of the National Red Cross the management of relief measures and the distribution of the great funds appropriated by congress, and recommending to the people of the United States that their contributions be diverted into the same hands.

Soon Dissipated. However, a momentary feeling that the men who had endured the heat and burden of the day were being treated unfairly by this diversion of authority into new and foreign keeping, was soon dissipated by the reflection that the action of the president was the result of misinformation. At a conference at Fort Mason between Generals Greeley and Funston, Mayor Schmitz, Governor Pardee and Dr. Devine, it was agreed that Dr. Devine should frame a telegram to the president informing him of the splendid work already done and of his perfect willingness to assist in forwarding the measures already taken.

What hurt even more was the suggestion made in the letter from President Roosevelt to Secretary of War Taft that reports had reached him that less charity was being shown the Chinese than the whites, and directing that if this be true, the situation should be remedied at once. If the people of San Francisco are not in love with the Chinese it was felt that the name they have earned in the past for charity and open-heartedness should have saved them from any reflection that they would have permitted any human being to suffer.

A special message was sent to President Roosevelt signed by the constituted authorities, as follows:

"All reports that the people or the officials or the relief committees of San Francisco are making any distinction in relieving, succoring or protecting the Chinese or any other people differing in race or color, are totally false and entirely unfounded. The committees and even the homeless sufferers themselves are treating the Chinese and all other fellow unfortunates with consideration worthy of our civilization and of our country. The people of San Francisco are striving with all their heart to relieve their destitute, care for the sick, protect their helpless and uplift their stricken, irrespective of race, creed or color, in accordance with the dictates of humanity, in a manner worthy of Americans, and in the common brotherhood of man. Please give to press."

Feeding the Homeless. The work of housing and feeding the homeless and of rearranging the sanitary conditions was carried on with tremendous energy. It is certain that no one is hungry in San Francisco now unless he is wilfully so.

An investigation of the sewers has shown that they were not as badly damaged as was feared, and while there were breaks, they have been repaired. There has been no outbreak of contagious disease nor is any feared. The hospitals are discharging patients by the score.

The city is not yet in sight of the resumption of banking business. There was an inspection during the day of the bank vaults and none was found to have been destroyed. But it is realized that an early opening would endanger their contents and some weeks will elapse before they are entered. In the meantime business will be done at temporary quarters with money furnished by the mint and the sub-treasury.

Military rule by the police is still maintained. The militarism of the militia having given cause of complaint, they were warned during the evening in a letter sent by Mayor Schmitz to General Koster that the city is not under martial law, and that the impressment of citizens would no longer be tolerated. This will be welcome news to many citizens.

Late in the afternoon Dr. Edward Devine in a few words removed whatever misapprehension there might be as to the intent and scope of his work here.

"I have come here to see, hear and report," he said, "and my chief aim is to co-operate with you and carry on the work you have so well begun."

At a joint meeting of the finance committee and the chairman of all the emergency committees it was ascertained that the loss of life is less than 300.

This approximation was made by Fairfax Phelan, chairman of the relief of sick and wounded committee, and surprised every one present, as an estimate of 1,000 and more had been made by the coroner's office. It was also ascertained that the expenses incurred by the different committees in carrying on their divers duties are thus far considerably less than expected. Representatives of railroads, whose offices were destroyed, have decided to follow the example of the Southern Pacific and will not abandon locations here.

Before noon practically all the essential departments of the Southern Pacific were in operation. During the morning every available employee was engaged in arranging for the great press of business entailed by the arrival of food supplies. New office furniture consigned to dealers who have no use for it was carried into the ferry building, where provision has been made for all Eastern railroad agencies not elsewhere accommodated.

Traffic Director Stubbs confirmed the statement that the main offices of the Southern Pacific will remain in San Francisco.

Commence Reconstruction.

A force of men during the day commenced reconstruction of the ferry building tower, the upper half of which will have to be replaced with lighter material.

The military officers early in the morning returned to the state harbor commission full authority over docks, wharves and piers.

Nothing is to be handled at the docks except food supplies, and no vessel will be allowed to lie alongside a wharf where there is any possibility of unloading anything needed by the people.

In company with William Dohrman, the auditor of the St. Francis hotel, representatives of the Associated Press explored the building as far as the fourth floor. The interior resembles the inside of a dead furnace. The effect of the intense heat is shown by melted glass and metal objects. The walls, however, do not appear to be sprung and the building can be repaired.

Of the 450 guests who were in the hotel about forty have returned and registered at a temporary office at the main entrance.

Telephone connections to Oakland and San Bruno are now complete. During the day the Pacific States' Telephone and Telegraph company had 800 men at work. Before night a 25-wire cable had been laid the entire length of Market street in the cable slot, and messages are now being sent without difficulty.

The cable toward San Bruno has thirty wires and this also is in working order. The company's underground conduits were generally shaken and in some cases destroyed, but to what extent has not yet been determined.

Three hundred merchants met during the afternoon to consider the best methods for reconstructing retail business. Steps were taken for the formation of a Resumption of Trade League.

Shipping at a Standstill.

Shipping is at a standstill. Only one vessel of any size has been permitted to leave this port. The exception was a big German freighter bound for Hamburg.

The fire underwriters are making some plans to reopen offices in the Merchants' Exchange building.

The San Francisco Gas and Electric Light company has obtained permits for a small army of men to go about the city to gain some idea of the damage to its mains.

The United Railways company has 500 employees clearing the tracks and erecting temporary trolley poles on Market street. These poles were erected from the ferry building to Fifth street.

Dr. Ward, president of the state board of health, states that there is less communicable disease in the city today than at any time during the past seven weeks. Dr. Ward will issue a daily bulletin on health conditions.

Chairman Phelan reports contributions to the relief fund as follows:

Outside $1,917,000; local $540,000; total $2,457,000.

Many cases of clothing, old and new, were distributed among the needy. Several thousands persons were supplied with garments during the first few hours and there still remain many unopened cases. A dozen large boxes containing assorted sizes of overcoats were emptied in a twinkling, and for half an hour afterward the gratified owners of the garments engaged in alternately trading and trying them on until they had secured something like a fit.

Massachusetts Is Liberal.

Boston, April 25.—The Massachusetts relief fund for California was $7,000 short of $500,000 at night. This sum does not include the money subscribed by many of the fraternal orders or individual contributions sent direct to San Francisco, about $200,000 in all.

Signs Resolution.

Washington, April 25.—President Roosevelt has signed the joint resolution of congress appropriating $1,500,000 additional for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers.

AGREEMENT IS SIGNED.

Strikers at Kenosha, Wis., Will Return to Work.

Milwaukee, April 25.—A Sentinel special from Kenosha, Wis., says:

An agreement has been signed between the manager of the Allen tannery and the committee representing the strikers, which makes many concessions to the strikers. By the terms of the agreement the men in three departments will receive an increase in wages of 50 cents a week, while those in others will receive $1 a week added pay. The men are to lose no time for the two days taken up in the strike. This agreement has not been ratified and some of the discontented ones are hanging about the factory buildings and one assault in which bricks were thrown through windows took place at night. The situation, however, is not alarming. It is thought possible that the men will return to work in the morning.

BOMB FOR LOUBET.

Former President of France Narrowly Escapes Being Killed.

Paris, April 25.—A dispatch to the Journal from Montelmar, department of the Drome, says that the authorities there found a bomb to which a burning fuse was attached, on the window sill of the library of Former President Loubet's villa, where he and his family are spending their Easter vacation. The fuse was extinguished and an examination of the bomb showed it to be of an extremely deadly nature.

The strike situation throughout the country, which assumed alarming proportions last week caused by the San Francisco disaster, has momentarily improved, but the people are fearful of a crisis May 1, when all the ranks of labor will make a gigantic eight-hour demonstration.

Whether this will be accompanied by violence and bloodshed is only conjecture, but the people are intensely alarmed and the authorities are adopting extreme military and police precautions. The garrison at Paris is being rapidly strengthened and it is expected that 60,000 troops will be available here May 1.

In the mining regions there is another camp in which an army corps is ready for eventualities and similar precautions are being taken at other centers.

The labor organizations do not conceal the fact that it is their intention to make a supreme effort.

INDIAN APPROPRIATION BILL.

Senate Puts in Almost an Entire Day Considering the Measure.

Washington, April 25.—The senate spent almost the entire day upon the consideration of the Indian appropriation bill and it had not been disposed of when the day's session closed. A number of minor bills, including one relating to the operation of the coastwise laws in the Philippine islands, were passed. While it was under discussion some regret was expressed over the failure of the house to act upon the shipping bill.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

Charles Ellison's three-year-old filly Lady Navarre won the rich Tennessee Derby at Memphis Tuesday.

New Orleans is in gala attire in honor of the annual reunion of the Confederate Veterans' association, which is being held there.

The senate in executive session Tuesday confirmed the nomination of E. G. Tamm of Wisconsin as auditor for the postoffice department.

The faculty of the University of Minnesota has voted to retain Dr. H. L. Williams as coach of the football squad for one year at a salary of $3,000.

At New York, Fred Beell of Wisconsin defeated John Piening of New York city in a heavyweight wrestling match at the Grand Central palace, by winning the last two falls.

Mrs. A. G. Pritchard, wife of a San Francisco manufacturer, who with her husband was on her way home to San Francisco, became suddenly insane at the union station at Pittsburg Tuesday night.

H. F. MICHAEL CO'S Daily Store News

Every indication is for rain.

The atmosphere suggests it, the weather man says we will have it and the earth is demanding it. It is sure to come; it always does. What the moral?

Umbrellas are a necessity in rainy weather, you know, and ours are particularly desirable. We are showing a very pretty line of good qualities. Those which have neat handles, will remain black and sell at a popular price.

You will be interested in the umbrellas we have for children. That is, the very small school child. 22 or 24 inches in size and of a good cloth selling this week at 49c.

These are the days you want novel things.

A new collar, a pretty ribbon, and a host of other little dress accessories. It is at our store that you find these neat articles and you know that what you find at our counters is reasonably priced.

Give heed to our showing of white.

It is a white year and you will want to appear in a white costume. Our white goods in every line are selected with care and will please the most exacting.

But not only the piece goods, but the white hosiery, white bags, white waists, white parasols, white skirts and every other white article you will expect to find in a dry goods store will be found here.

PLACED IN A CRYPT

REMAINS OF ADMIRAL JOHN PAUL JONES ARE INTERRED AT ANNAPOLIS, MD.

ROOSEVELT AT CEREMONIES

NATION'S CHIEF EXECUTIVE ATTENDS SERVICES OVER REMAINS OF HERO.

Annapolis, Md., April 25.—Attended by the official head of the nation he served, by the ambassadorial representative of the land in which he died; by naval representatives of the United States and France and by thousands of citizens of the country whose first admiral he was, the remains of John Paul Jones were during the day placed in a crypt beneath the stairway of Bancroft Hall. The coffin will remain there until the completion of the chapel in which they are to be deposited permanently.

Crowds such as the ancient capital of Maryland has seldom known lined the streets and stood about the railroad station long before President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt, members of the cabinet, the French ambassador and Madame Jusserand and other dignitaries had arrived. In the depot were Admiral Sands and the academic board of the naval academy, Colonel Charles A. P. Hatfield, who commanded two troops of the Thirtieth cavalry, and the regimental band.

Nearly three-quarters of an hour behind scheduled time, the train entered the station and President Roosevelt, accompanied by Admiral Sands, appeared, followed by the other members of the party. The president immediately entered an automobile and led by the cavalymen proceeded to the naval academy. As the president entered the grounds a salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the old United States steamship Hartford, once the flagship of Admiral Farragut. Drawn up opposite the residence of the superintendent were the marine battalion and the naval academy band.

An elaborate luncheon given by Admiral Sands preceded the formal exercises. Early in the morning the casket containing the remains of the long dead admiral had been removed from the temporary vault in which he has rested since being brought from France, and deposited in the new armory of the naval academy.

Casket Almost Hidden.

The oaken casket was almost hidden by a Union Jack and upon it rested two crossed palms, a wreath of green and the sword presented to the great naval commander by the king of France. Nearby a sentry continued the guard that has not ceased since the casket first arrived here.

THREE HEROES SAVED THE CITY.

Dynamite Squad Did Gallant Work in San Francisco.

San Francisco, April 25.—Three heroes saved San Francisco—what is left of it. They were the dynamite squad, that threw back the fire demon at Van Ness avenue.

When the burning city seemed doomed and the flames lighted the sky further and further to the west, Admiral McCalla sent a trio of his most trusted men from Mare Island with orders to check the conflagration at any cost. With them they brought a ton and a half of gun cotton.

Captain McBride was in charge of the squad. Chief Gunner Adamson placed the charges and the third gunner set them off.

The thunderous detonations to which the terrified city listened all that dreadful Friday night meant the salvation of 300,000 lives. A million dollars' worth of property, fire residences and worthless shacks were blown to dust, but the destruction broke the fire and sent the flames over their own charred path.

The whole east side of Van Ness avenue, from Golden Gate to Green, was dynamited one block deep, though most of the structures stood untouched by spark or cinder. Not one charge failed. Not one building stood upon its foundations.

Every pound of gun cotton did its work and though the ruins burned it was but feebly.

FOREIGN DONATIONS.

Will Be Accepted by California Club Women in New York.

New York, April 25.—The California club of women in executive session during the day at its clubrooms in the Waldorf-Astoria decided to accept donations from foreigners in opposition to the stand taken by President Roosevelt. A resolution to that effect was unanimously adopted.

The resolution says that the club will receive foreign as well as domestic contributions, and see that they are spent where they will do the most good.

The general relief funds continued to expand during the day. The total of the New York Chamber of Commerce fund is now $724,564. The combined Red Cross and mayor's fund had nearly reached $600,000. The Merchants' association fund stands at $145,650. The Jockey club, the controlling body of the Eastern turf, contributed $25,000.

Will Adjust Losses.

Oakland, Cal., April 25.—State Insurance Commissioner Wolfe announced during the day that nearly all the large insurance companies would be able to make satisfactory adjustments of the losses caused by the San Francisco fire. He estimates that the amounts for which the companies are liable will probably reach $250,000,000.

Dogs Eat Corpses.

San Francisco, April 25.—One of the gruesome scenes that followed the fire was that witnessed on Telegraph and Russian Hills and along the entire North Beach front of the city during the morning when scores of half-starved dogs were found eating human bodies, half buried in the ruins.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Sunday School Workers of Crow Wing County are Gathered In Brainerd

GREAT INTEREST MANIFESTED

Large Delegation From Brainerd and Outside Sunday Schools are Present

The Sunday school workers of Crow Wing county gathered at the First Presbyterian church Tuesday afternoon to consider ways and means for increasing the attendance and power for good of the Sunday schools in the county. The meeting continues through today, closing tonight. Delegates are present from nearly every Brainerd Sunday school affiliated with the American Sunday School Union, as well as from a number of outlying schools. The afternoon Wednesday was taken up with welcoming the delegates and listening to an address by Miss Grace Longfellow, of Minneapolis. Miss Longfellow also addressed the evening meeting. This forenoon was devoted largely to business and discussions of various phases of Sunday school work. The afternoon session is largely round table conferences.

The convention will close this evening with meeting at which addresses will be delivered by Miss Longfellow, A. T. Larson and Walter J. Smith. The public is especially urged to attend the meeting this evening.

Among the out of town delegates present are:

Deerwood—Rev. Mr. Parish, Mr. and Mrs. P. K. Wetzel, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Rathbone, Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Adams. Pequot—Rev. and Mrs. R. Bell and Mrs. A. R. Holman. Loerch—Miss M. Dullum, Miss Hilda Dullum. Fort Ripley—Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Cawkins. South Long Lake—H. A. Statia.

LAST day tomorrow to have your eyes examined free by Dr. Bruns, the Optometrist. Glasses fitted correctly. Office at National Hotel parlors.

FELL OFF THE WAGON

Brainerd Seems to have Fallen off the Water Wagon, to Judge by the Dust Flying

THE DISPATCH has been besieged the last few days with queries as to why the sprinkling wagon is not running. It is reported that a canvass was made of the business men a few weeks ago and it failed of showing a requisite amount of cash in sight and the parties interested abandoned the scheme. There is talk of asking the city council to take the matter up.

Just a Little Rug Talk.

YOU

must be interested in choice rugs, they are the most conspicuously artistic feature of the home. 9x12 fits almost any room; but we have other sizes, both larger and smaller. A door or arch is not complete without one of our dainty 3x3's. Then we have a selection of sizes to put in the bay window, place before any easy chair, or in any of the nooks and corners that demand a rug. [Our hall runners fit any hall; a vestibule rug to match, goes nicely. The designs of these many styles are as varied as the selection is large. The prices are satisfactory to the most thrifty. You can not but be satisfied if you examine our line.

A FAMOUS SONG WRITER.

Foster Was Called the Edgar Allan Poe of Music.

Stephen Collins Foster, the most popular of American song writers and composers, has been called the Edgar Allan Poe of music. Like Poe, he was a genius. He came of Virginia parentage, received a good education and died in New York Jan. 13, 1864, in the height of his fame, a penniless wanderer. He was born in Pittsburgh July 4, 1826.

He learned easily, and after receiving private lessons in music and drawing taught himself to play on the flageolet, guitar and banjo. He also devoted several years to the voice and piano. Then he turned his attention to composing songs and dialect ballads and dialect songs. At the age of seventeen, while employed in Louisville, Ky., he published the serenade "Open Thy Lattice, Love," which was instantly successful. Then followed "Uncle Ned," "O Susannah," which were sung by a minstrel troupe, and Stephen Foster became famous far and wide.

Marrying, in 1844, Jennie McDowell, he came to New York, where in rapid succession he supplied his publishers with songs which became famous—"Old Kentucky Home," "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground," "Old Dog Tray," "Willie, We Have Missed You" and "Sweet Ellen Bayne." But the song that is best known in many lands is "The Swanee River," for which Christy's minstrels gave him at the beginning $50. In addition he received royalties on its sale of over half a million copies and the honor of knowing that eminent singers like Jenny Lind sang it to applauding thousands.

His last song, a negro melody, "Old Black Joe," is still a favorite. A fourth of his 150 songs were in negro dialect, among which were "Nellie Bly," "Nell Was a Lady" and "Nancy Tile."

LEADER OF AN INSURANCE WAR

Railroad President and Financier to Whom Hundreds of Thousands Are Intrusting Their Interests in the Movement to Reform the Mutual Life Is a Great Lover of Outdoors. An Instance of His Adaptability.

"A man who looks like pictures of the ancient vikings, with great reddish mustache and huge frame, candid blue eyes, big hands and feet, firm chin and strong mouth and slightly stooping in his gait, as though doubtful about displaying all of his six feet and three or four inches of height. A man of self confidence, without conceit or affectation, thoroughly businesslike and generally busy, but uniformly kindly and courteous to high and low."

Thus an acquaintance described Stuyvesant Fish, whose name has become known to hundreds of thousands within the last few days as that of the leader of the first independent movement to reform one of the large insurance companies from the inside, says a correspondent of the New York Post.

Although president of a railroad and with a reputation in American financial circles for twenty years or more, Mr. Fish was an inconspicuous person last month in comparison with what he is now. By withdrawing from the Mutual Life's self investigating committee because of its failure to investigate according to his ideas and later by resigning his position as trustee and consenting to head a policy holders' campaign against the powerfully entrenched administration of the company he has grown to be, for the time at least, the most talked of American. Not only at home are his doings heralded daily. In England, France and Germany the Mutual Life's policy holders are organizing for his support. Whether he wins or loses he is to be the central figure in a contest of direct interest to more than 600,000 men and women holding contracts with the Mutual Life and of interest indirectly to millions of others whose lives are insured elsewhere.

They say that when Stuyvesant Fish starts to do anything he is sure to do it well, whether it be in railroad or in some new line. There is a story about him that illustrates his adaptability, and though the undertaking in this instance was a trifling one, it furnished an index to his character.

Not many years ago, through no fault of his own, he was taxed with the duty of administering an estate a little distance north of New York. In the course of time certain personal properties had to be sold, and included among them were the contents of an old blacksmith shop on the estate. After causing the sale to be advertised Mr. Fish journeyed to the scene on the appointed day. A crowd of farmers from the vicinity had gathered around the building.

"Where's the auctioneer?" some one asked.

"Here I am," responded the railroad president.

Jumping on a wagon, he proceeded to sell tools, scrap iron, bellows and a couple of dilapidated vehicles. As he explained afterward, the profits to be realized did not justify hiring a regular auctioneer. He was acting as a trustee, and he wanted to get all he could for those in whose behalf he was managing the estate. Incidentally it may be mentioned that he was such an eloquent auctioneer that he got top prices for everything, and to this day the buyers are recalling his silver tongue "Going, going, gone!"

The office of the president of the Illinois Central railroad is at 135 Broadway, New York, and Mr. Fish, like the heads of most other western systems, spends most of his time in New York. Usually he arrives downtown from his city house at 25 East Seventy-eighth street or his country place at Garrison-on-the-Hudson before 10 o'clock in the morning. He is apt to be in the office until late in the afternoon, even on Saturdays, and sometimes he is still there after other men of the Wall street district have finished their dinners.

"Everybody works hard here," says his clerks, with tones of pride, as if to imply that they wouldn't, if they could, be caught doing fewer hours of labor than their chief. All of them regard Mr. Fish as little less than superhuman, and their admiration is only equalled by their liking for him. That he believes in good wages has something to do with it, but the main thing is that he is fair, approachable and appreciative.

"That's right, Dick," he will say to one of them by way of commendation for a job well done, or, "Will you do this for me, John?"

To him they are friends as well as employees. He leaves off the "Mr." and uses their first names, and they are ready to work for him or with him as fast or as long as he needs them.

The characteristic that strikes the visitor to Mr. Fish's office is his unfailing sense of humor. One cannot be with him ten minutes without tapping his store of anecdotes, and all of them are good ones. He does not fling them at you gratuitously, but manages to make them illustrate a point or strengthen an argument. They seem to "come to him" as spontaneously as the merest commonplaces of conversation.

The other day, when he was chatting with a caller, the talk drifted toward New Yorkers who had made great fortunes in special lines of manufacturing. The railroad president happened to look out of his thirteenth story window and among the hundreds of buildings before him was one whose wall bore in large letters the name of a man that makes a familiar brand of soap.

"Why, there's — —," remarked Mr. Fish. "See his sign over there? I've known him a long time. Years ago he was making cranes—hoisting machines, you know. One day he said to me, 'Stuyvesant, I can't get together enough money by making cranes.' I replied, 'Of course you can't, for you make the sort of crane that lasts anybody for a lifetime.' He liked to hear that, as he was proud of his cranes, but he continued to lament over the slowness of the money crop. Finally I said: 'You're in the wrong business. What you ought to do is to make soap.' It was just talk, but what do you suppose he did? He took my advice, and pow—well, just look at his name yonder. He has made money so fast that he doesn't know what to do with it."

While he is in his office Mr. Fish smokes big cigars. When he leaves Broadway, if he does not take a train for his place at Garrison, he is apt to go straight to the Seventy-eighth street house, there to spend the evening reading or studying economics or poring over "railroad literature."

But Mr. Fish does not choose the city in any of its aspects as the best place for leisure hours. It is a favorite saying with him that a man must often get "a sight of the hills" and a breath of fresh air in order to think and work as he should. Whenever he has time or when he is coming over a specially hard problem of business he likes to go to Garrison, even though he can stay only half a day or through Sunday.

The estate at Garrison, covering 500 acres, was acquired by Mr. Fish's father, the late Hamilton Fish, secretary of state in President Grant's cabinet, on the day Fort Sumter was fired upon. There the present head of the family raises sheep and chickens, which are his hobbies—that is, next to his dogs. These dogs, a Scotch terrier, a Great Dane, a collie and a spaniel, are his constant companions when he walks, as he does almost all day, around "the place."

Outside of his tramping with the dogs at Garrison, he likes duck shooting best. With parties of friends he occasionally leaves his work for a hunt. Not long ago he was looking for ducks in company with Judge James B. Dill, who is now one of his legal advisers in the Mutual Life controversy.

Mr. Fish was born in New York city on June 24, 1851, and during his boyhood was schooled by the same tutor who taught William Waldorf Astor. The two boys were friends as early as Mr. Fish's ninth year, an interesting fact in view of the report that Mr. Astor has taken sides against the Peabody administration in the Mutual Life fight.

Immediately after graduating in 1871 from Columbia college young Stuyvesant went into the employ of the Illinois Central railroad as a clerk. A story is that he received $3 a week as his salary. At any rate, he was not overpaid. For about a year he held the position, and then he was made secretary to the president in 1872, but in the same year he left the road's service to become a clerk in the old banking house of Morton, Bliss & Co., predecessors of the present Morton Trust company.

Having risen to the managing clerkship of the firm, he became a member of the New York Stock Exchange in 1876. He continued to hold his clerkship until March 15, 1877, and his seat on the exchange until 1879. Meanwhile, in 1876, he was elected a director of the Illinois Central and was appointed agent for the purchasing of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern railroad, and soon afterward was made secretary of the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans railway, of which he became vice president in 1882.

In 1883-84 he was second vice president of the Illinois Central. Then he was vice president from 1884 to 1887, and on May 13 of that year he became president. Since then he has achieved a reputation second to none of the country's railway operators, and to his originality are attributed many of the improvements in the Illinois Central's equipment. Especially has he been interested in perfecting the company's suburban service, in which it leads most railroads of the world.
